

names will pay extra for the packages that use these names.

Note that one of the reasons we really really want to ship lucida is to loosen the control that linotype and others have over names. By making the lucida fonts popular we will reduce the 'aura' that the current names have. This will reduce the price of fonts and our end users will accrue the benefits.

Nobody at Apple is currently on the list, but Claris is. I don't think we can drop them.

Similar thing for Sun. We really do need to send it to the network guys for Sun's PC-NFS, but can should drop all other sites. I think there is one in addition to the PC-NFS guys.

are you using dingbats?

if not, how are you getting the bullet characters?

And what if you're editing existing presentations that have them?

win 3.1 needs to fully support ppt and dingbats, otherwise we'll get hammered. bruck's note demonstrates that.
