

From: Steven Sinofsky
Sent: Monday, January 25, 1999 12:15 AM
To: Dean Hachamovitch
Cc: Andrew Kwatinetz; Andy Schuler; Julie Larson
Subject: RE: another hosting Office-y thing

This one is super interesting. We should do a full write up on this one and think about how to do this sort of scenario for office10. The syncing of files is pretty cool. Shared calendars is very nice. Imagine if file open/save worked!

-----Original Message-----

From: Dean Hachamovitch
Sent: Sunday, January 24, 1999 5:53 PM
To: Steven Sinofsky
Subject: FW: another hosting Office-y thing
Importance: Low

the "convert bookmarks to mail" reminds me of all the conversations we've had about optimizing for sharing URLs (and recalling who you've shared them with, all the URLs that person X has sent me, etc.).

-----Original Message-----

From: Dean Hachamovitch
Sent: Sunday, January 24, 1999 5:49 PM
To: Heikki Kanerva
Cc: PJ Hough; Andrew Kwatinetz; Richard McAniff
Subject: RE: another hosting Office-y thing hit the send button too fast there: the tag line "your personal virtual desktop." In addition to the free mail, calendar, address book etc. They give you 5M of space for your files (they charge for more space + services). Wall St Journal called it out for how well it works with Excel and Word (easy and fast upload, sharing with others). I'll take a swag at it and send quick mail to you Heikki (since there are only about 50 of these things out there).

-----Original Message-----

From: Dean Hachamovitch
Sent: Sunday, January 24, 1999 5:45 PM
To: Heikki Kanerva
Cc: PJ Hough; Andrew Kwatinetz; Richard McAniff
Subject: another hosting Office-y thing

www.magicaldesk.com -- pretty cool

Plaintiff's Exhibit

6539_A

Comes v. Microsoft

HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL

MS/CR 0015437
CONFIDENTIAL